London, Jan. 21 .- An explosion of gas occurre In the pit of the Fair Lady Mine at Hanley this porning, and not less than eighty miners are entombed in the mine. Great excitement exists As soon as the news of the disaster reached the homes of the operatives the vicinity of the shaft was througed with members of the families of the workmen who were known to be in the pit, giving went to their grief in toud cries and clamoring for speedy means to be taken to deliver those who might not be dead,

Up to the time of sending this dispatch no bodhave been recovered, although parties are prepared to descend in search of them as soon as the mine is sufficiently free from gas and the foul air to allow an investigation to be made. Old and experienced miners, familiar with the character and effect of fire damp explosions, say there is a probability that some of the men who were out of the immediate neighborhood of the explosion may be found alive, although the chances are not strong enough to justify much hope being founded spon them.

Indiguation is expressed against the mine own ers and manage s for lack of precaution in respect to ventilation.

Hanley is a town in Stafford County, England, in the district called "The Potteries," and forms together with Shelton, on 3 town of about 39,000 inhabitants, mostly engaged in the manufacture of earthenware and china.

DOUGLAS DEMANDS HIS RATIONS. Sational Associated Press to the Star. WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.-The Indian Commissioner has received the following: Los Pin s, Jan. 18, To Hoyt, Commissioner, Washington: Douglas was at the Agency yesterday, re-newing his request for supplies through Sapavanaro. He was refused, which caused considerable dissatisfaction among the In-dians. Sapavanaro favored giving Douglas flour as a peace measure during Oursy's absence. The Indians are offering exorbitant prices for arms and ammunitions.

[Signed.] SHERMAN,

Clerk in Charge. The law forbids the issue of rations to Indians on the war path. The White River Utes are considered to be on the war path until they surrender the twelve Indians concerned in the outrages at White River Agency. Consequently the demand of Douglas will not be complied with. GOVERNMENT APPROVES OF THE PROJECT. A delegation of Cherokee Indians now in the city will shortly have an interview with Ouray and other Ute chiefs in Washington and urge them to give up their lands in Colorado and come down to the Indian Territory and settle. The Govern-ment approves of this project.

TERRIBLE TRAGEDY IN NEW PORT THIS MORNING.

John Manning Cuts Ed. Councilly's Throat With a Razor.

Newport, across the river, looms up again Newport, across the river, looms up again this morning with another sensation, this time in the shape of a murder most foul, and the details of which are shocking in the extreme. The scene of the murder is the old rookery known as the Newport Jail, which is situated immediately in the rear of the Court House. John Manning, alias Guilfoyle, is the murderer, and his victim Ed. Connolly.

Ed. Connolly.

The cause that led to the crime was a quarrel that aprung up between them this morning about which should occupy a certain bunk in the jail. During the quarrel. Connolly called Manning a d-n liar, at the same time striking him a severe blow on the nose with his open hand hard enough to bring the blood. They then grappled and a lively tursle ensued. Manning jerked loose and ran to the further end of the jall, and Connolly after him.

They clinched again and Manning again broke loose, and running to his cell pro-cured a razor with which he made at his victim, striking him a desperate blow on the left side of the neck, which entirely the left side of the neak, which entirely severed the jugular vein, and cut a gash fully six inches in length. Connolly staggered for a moment and fell, the blood gushing from the horrible wound in a torrent. Jailer Schwarts heard the scuffle and gained admittance to the jail as soon as possible. He dispatched messengers after physicians at once.

Dr. Thornton was the first called for, but it is said he refused to go, giving some trivial excuse.

Coroner Schoolfield was at once notified and an his arrival summoned the following jury: Wm. Dve. Wm. Fritz, C. A. Smith, Henry Bertman, Wm. Hays and Oharles B herty.

John Schwartz was the first sworn and testified as f llows:

testified as f llows:

Was not there when the quarrel one menced, but was attracted by the unname noise. The hour was quarter past 7, the usual hour when I give prisoners breakfast On going to the window I was Connolly lying on the floor. I got ke a immediately and went in and found Connolly stretched out, with the blood spurting from a terribl wound in the side of his neck. I asked him wound in the side of his neck, I asked him who cut him, and he said "My G d! My God! Gilly has cut me;" saked "Gilly" why he cut him; he said Connelly struck him first; I sent for physicians, but Thornton and Pythian refused to come; the boys, as far as I know, were the best of friends previous to this; John Manning told me that he did the cutting. When asked as to the latter's character, the Jailer said that Manning was one of the worst men ever put in the Newport Jail; that he, on several occasions, threatened his (the jailer's) life; that he served a term in the Penitentary for larceny, and that he was now under bonds for destroying a cell was now under bonds for destroying a cell in the jail. As to Connolly, he was haru-less, and that there was scarcely a doubt but he was innocent of the charge he was arrested for, and would have been dis-

Chief Catingham testified that Manning confessed to him to having done the cut ting and the Chief further stated that Mar ning's character was bad and he could not he trusted, while on the other hand he said Connolly was quiet and harmless. James McLane was next called but his testimony differed but little from that already given deliberation rendered a verdict that the de ceased came to his death at the hands of John Manning, who cut his throat with a rasor.
